MEASURING OUR ACHIEVEMENTS

With more than 10,000 adult volunteers, the Denver Area Council helps its 55,242 youth members to be Prepared. For Life. The value of that preparation lives in the heart of every person involved in Scouting who has ever overcome one of life's challenges, and it helps to inspire a lifetime of character and service.

The Denver Area Council (DAC) serves the Denver metro area covering ten counties. The DAC is the largest council in Colorado and ranks among the top 10 largest in the nation. 530 Boy Scouts in the Denver Area Honored as Eagle Scouts in 2013

It's the highest rank in the Boy Scouts of America (BSA), and 530 Scouts in the Denver Metro Area were honored for achieving Eagle Scout at the 9th Annual Eagle Scout Recognition Banquet presented by Merrick & Company. Together this class of Eagle Scouts facilitated over 89,023 hours of volunteer service and provided $1,970,969 in value to their communities through completion of their Eagle Scout projects over the past year. "Becoming an Eagle Scout is monumental for a young man. It becomes a key differentiator in his life," said John Cabeza, Scout Executive/CEO of the Boy Scouts of America, Denver Area Council. In addition, three community and local business leaders, Dr. John A. Odom, Jr., Tom A. Millensifer, and Randy D. Funk received the National Eagle Scout Association (NESA) Outstanding Eagle Scout Award.

The hard-earned rank of Eagle Scout is widely recognized as a mark of distinction. The accomplishments Eagle Scouts have achieved and the service they have provided since 1912 underscore the importance of Scouting to the prosperity of our nation and our communities. Over the past century, the contributions of Eagle Scouts have made a significant impact on our community and nation. Since the first Eagle Scout award was earned in 1912, more than 2 million young men have gone on to achieve the Boy Scouts of America's highest rank, contributing more than 400 million service hours to our country.

This is the end of a long road to this momentous achievement for a Scout. Each Scout has earned at least 21 merit badges, has demonstrated proficiency in leadership, service and outdoor skills, and has performed his own Eagle project. This process can take years, and must be completed before a Scout turns 18. Nationally, only about 5 percent of Scouts achieve this respected rank.

Distinguished Eagle & Outstanding Eagle Recipients

Distinguished Eagle Scout Award

The Distinguished Eagle Scout Award is the National Eagle Scout Association's highest recognition. The Award was established to recognize Eagle Scouts who, at least 25 years after receiving the Eagle Scout Award, have reached the highest national level of success in their field. In addition, these recipients have demonstrated a strong record of volunteer leadership service to their community.

Outstanding Eagle Scout Award

The NESA Outstanding Eagle Scout Award (NOESA) is a prestigious recognition granted by the local council's NESA committee to Eagle Scouts who have demonstrated outstanding achievement at the local, state, or regional level. Unlike the Distinguished Eagle Scout Award, which is a national award, the NOESA recognizes Eagle Scouts whose efforts have made a positive impact closer to home.

Dr. John A. Odom, Jr. - Eagle Scout 1949

Dr. John A. Odom, Jr. (Jack) became an Eagle Scout in 1949 as a member of Troop 170 in Crossville, Tennessee. His father, John Odom, had joined Lone Scouts of America (LSA) in 1918, and his membership card was signed by William Boyce, one of the founders of the BSA. In 1924, the LSA merged with the BSA. Jack's father, John, was the Scout leader in the troop where Jack and his two brothers, Bill and Tom became Eagle Scouts and members of Order of the Arrow. He began his orthopedic practice in Denver in 1969. During the next 39 years, he practiced many of Denver's finest hospitals and medical centers. He lectured on scoliosis and brought children from underdeveloped countries to Denver for surgical corrections of their severe deformities at no cost. Jack spent over ten years as an Assistant Scout Master in Troop 130, Golden, where two of his sons, Devin and Nathan, became Eagle Scouts and brotherhood members of the Order of the Arrow. Jack received the Silver Beaver Award in 1998.

Tom A. Millensifer - Eagle Scout 1950

Tom A. Millensifer retired April 30, 2013 from active employment as Executive Vice President and Technical Director of Powmet Inc. of Rockford Illinois after 28 years and after 57 years in the molybdenum and rhenium business. He continues as a consultant with Powmet as well as working with his wife Nancy as owners of three other companies. His career has taken him to 40 foreign countries or territories including five trips to China. He has assisted in designing molybdenum chemical processes and plants in China and Mongolia in addition to the design, construction and operation of molybdenum and rhenium chemical plants in the United States. He is also an author on the topic of critical metals. He completed the ranks in Cub Scouts, earned the Arrow of Light. In 1950 he earned Eagle Scout, joined Post 82 and earned a Bronze Palm. He became an adult volunteer when his grandson Michael Cooper crossed over. Michael achieved the Eagle rank in 2000 exactly 50 years after Tom did so.

Randy Dennis Funk - Eagle Scout 1968

Randy D. Funk was awarded the rank of Eagle Scout in 1968 and has been actively involved in Scouting throughout his life. He received the Silver Beaver award from the Denver Area Council while serving as a member of the Executive Board. Randy and his wife, Andrea, are the parents of six children and have 11 grandchildren. Their three sons are also Eagle Scouts. Elder Funk was sustained as a member of the Second Quorum of the Seventy of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints on April 6, 2013. He currently serves in the Asia Area Presidency, which has responsibility for the activities of the Church in 18 countries in Asia. For most of that time he chaired the Denver Area Council's LDS Relations Committee. He helped establish the Council's Annual Eagle Recognition Banquet. Prior to his full-time Church service, he was a partner in the law firm of Sherman & Howard LLC in Denver, Colorado. During his professional career he represented public and private entities in major development projects in Colorado.

PREPARED FOR LEADERSHIP - ALEXANDER ENCINIAS, EAGLE SCOUT

Alexander Encinias: Eagle Scout

Not only did Alexander achieve the rank of Eagle Scout, he became a 4th generation Eagle Scout and the 6th Eagle in his family.

Read Alexander's Scouting Story

Alexander Encinias, a resident of Centennial and a Junior at Arapahoe High School attained the rank of Eagle Scout on June 18, 2013. However, there's a lot more to the story. Not only did he achieve the rank of Eagle Scout, he became a 4th generation Eagle Scout and the sixth Eagle in his family. All six of them received their awards through the Denver Area Council of Boy Scouts of America. When his Court of Honor was held, his uncle, Mike Steinmann (Eagle, 1966) and his grandfather, Lloyd Steinmann (Eagle, 1943) were present to administer the Eagle Oath and present him with his Eagle neckerchief.

Alex Encinias Centennial, Troop 117 - Chartered by St. Timothy's Episcopal Church

Alexander's great grandfather, Rodney Bardwell, Jr. became the first of the six Eagles on July 14, 1917. To honor his great grandfather, Alexander performed his Eagle project for Ft. Logan National Cemetery, where Bardwell is interred. He raised funds and led fellow Scouts in the construction of large footlockers which are used by Ft. Logan to store the commemorative flags that are placed on the soldiers' gravesites.

Alexander has been active in Scouting since 2003 when he joined Centennial Pack 559. In March of 2007, he crossed-over to Centennial Troop 117 where he remains active as a Junior Assistant Scoutmaster and recently added Bronze Palm to his accomplishments.

In 2013, the Denver Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America celebrated its 100th anniversary. Remarkably, Encinias and his family's four generations of Scouting span over 96 of those 100 years.

PREPARED FOR LIFE - FATHER AND SON, TIM AND JACK RYAN, EAGLE SCOUTS

It's not unusual for fathers and sons to be involved in Scouting together, but the Scouting story of me and my son Jack doesn't follow the usual path. I was a Scout in Missouri in the 1970s, where I earned the Eagle rank and became an Ordeal member of the Order of the Arrow in Troop 93, Milan, Missouri, part of the Great Rivers Council. Like a lot of young men, I drifted away from Scouting as I got deeper into high school, college and a career in journalism. Fast forward to the fall of 2000, when my son Jack was in the 2nd grade at Century Elementary School in Aurora. By now, Jack was 7 years old and a second grader, but it was also obvious by then that he was profoundly autistic. We had begun to notice this before Jack's 2nd birthday that he often didn't respond to his name and wasn't developing language like typical children do. It's not unusual for fathers and sons to be involved in Scouting together, but the Scouting story of me and my son Jack doesn't follow the usual path.

I was a Scout in Missouri in the 1970s, where I earned the Eagle rank and became an Ordeal member of the Order of the Arrow in Troop 93, Milan, Missouri, part of the Great Rivers Council. Like a lot of young men, I drifted away from Scouting as I got deeper into high school, college and a career in journalism. Fast forward to the fall of 2000, when my son Jack was in the 2nd grade at Century Elementary School in Aurora. By now, Jack was 7 years old and a second grader, but it was also obvious by then that he was profoundly autistic. We had begun to notice this before Jack's 2nd birthday that he often didn't respond to his name and wasn't developing language like typical children do.

Exposing Jack to Scouting was never part of a grand plan. I had very warm feelings for my time in the Scouts as a youth, but the years from the time we learned Jack was autistic (1994) until he started in Cub Scouts (2000) were a whirlwind of therapies and other efforts to address the autism that had become the central feature of our lives. When Jack's friend Colin invited him to Cub Scouts, we didn't really know if it would work. The defining characteristic of autism is difficulty with social situations, especially working and playing with others. Jack had and still has a tough time sustaining a conversation, and while adults who understand the condition will tolerate that and work around it, school age peers often give up and simply talk to someone else. But we started going to meetings with Pack 319 and Jack clearly enjoyed and looked forward to the activities. For two years in that pack and another two years at Pack 646 (when we moved to a new neighborhood) Jack was an extremely busy Cub Scout who earned the Arrow of Light as well as the Twentier award for earning 20 Webelos activity pins. When we moved to Pack 646, I decided to become involved in Scouting myself as an adult volunteer, first as a Webelos den leader, then as a committee chairman for Troop 171 and finally as the chapter adviser for the Medicine Pipe Chapter of the Order of the Arrow.

As Jack got older, he became more and more interested in Scout activities. Although he needed some support with logistics, Jack is a physically very strong and healthy young man, and enjoyed earning a long list of merit badges including Swimming, Lifesaving, Camping and many others. As a Scout leader, I've seen Scouts who made it to Eagle and others who lost interest or ran out of time. Jack earned his Eagle for a simple reason: It was very important to Jack that he become an Eagle Scout. Jack accomplished a lot in Boy Scouts in addition to the Eagle rank. He earned the Ad Altare Dei Catholic religious medal and became an Ordeal, then a Brotherhood and soon to be a Vigil Honor member of the Order of the Arrow. More importantly than that, though, was the opportunity Jack and I had to spend time together as a father and son, enjoying the Scouting program like any father and son. We hiked the Colorado Rockies in Camp Tahosa's Alpine Adventure program, canoed through the Canadian border in the Boundary Waters region and spent a week at the National Order of the Arrow Conference at Michigan State. Although many more challenges lay ahead for Jack, I am as proud of him as any father is of any son, and I am deeply grateful to the Boy Scouts of America and the Scouting movement for the support and encouragement they have offered both of us.

PREPARED FOR LEARNING

The Denver Area Council Learning for Life programs are designed for all age groups from pre-kindergarten through age 24. Our vision is to provide engaging and relevant Pre-K through 12th grade experiences that positively impact academic performance, social and emotional maturity, character development and career education for all students.

Services offered through these programs include community speakers talking on topics of career planning, life skills and coaching, to local field trips, use of camp facilities and ropes courses, to online teacher lesson plans, and local support and training opportunities. Evidence based research shows that the Learning for Life curriculum has statistically improved student attitudes, personal morality, communication competency, relationships, school behavior, self-confidence, problem solving skills and has increased attendance by 1.5 days a year.

HOW SCOUTING IS FUNDED

Expenses for local Scouting are shared by five entities: Scouts, their units, chartered partner organizations in their local communities, the Denver Area Council, and the BSA national organization.

WHERE DENVER AREA COUNCIL FUNDS GO

The DAC financially supports its Scouting units in many ways. We purchase program supplies for youth activities the council sponsors. We maintain two premier camp properties and the Frederic C. Hamilton Scout Service Center. We also provide insurance, maintain membership records and provide training for the volunteers.

INVESTMENT IN CHARACTER (IC)

This annual fundraising campaign welcomes contributions from anyone interested in supporting Scouting through the DAC. For your convenience, IC pledges may be made and paid at specified intervals throughout the year. Please contact the DAC Development Department at 303.455.5522.

DAC SPECIAL EVENTS

Exciting events like our annual Sports Breakfast, Sporting Clays Invitational, Drive a Scout to Camp Golf Classic, Vale la Pena, and numerous celebratory meals provide excellent opportunities for you to spend quality time with customers, friends, and colleagues, and support Scouting.

Please visit denverboyscouts.org for the latest special events details.
